Really Important Quote

“When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. --Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.”

“I know you can't read this whole thing but...”

Too Much Information

- The first thing you should do is ask yourself “What’s the point?” Every presentation should have a main point. What message are you trying to get across to your audience? If your audience will only remember one thing from your presentation, what do you want it to be?
- It’s important to know your audience. The content will depend on the audience. Research your audience to determine the types of attendees and their expectations.
- Do not put too much information on any one slide. Fewer bullet points is better than many. Use a few words as possible per bullet. Sentence Fragments are okay.
- Chose fonts that are the appropriate sizes. If a font is too small, it may be unreadable. If a font is too large, it may be annoying.
- While a picture may be worth a thousand words, too many pictures or too much clip art can be distracting. And, avoid the use of goofy looking clip art.

Emphasis

- Use One of...
 - Boldface
 - Italics
 - Underline ← IMHO Easiest to See
- Do Not Overuse
- Avoid
 - ALL CAPS IS FROM TYPEWRITER DAYS
 - BOLDFACE AND ALL CAPS AND UNDERLINE

The screenshot displays the PowerPoint Presenter View interface. The main slide, titled "Managing Equipment", lists several bullet points: "No Excuses", "Check Everything In Advance" (with sub-points for Projector, Sound, Network, and Wireless), and "Make Checklist of Things To" (with sub-points for Bring, Do, and Plug/Connect). The slide footer includes "The Capstone Experience", "Creating and Giving Presentations", and the slide number "36".

To the right of the slide, a text box contains the following text:

A few years ago, the CIO of Chrysler came to speak at the freshmen and senior seminar.

She sent two people to MSU the day before her talk with her laptop just to test it out in the room where she was presenting. One person was an AV person; the other was a Director.

Once the laptop was tested and deemed to be working correctly, it was shutdown and not used (to preserve its state) until the next day.

The bottom of the screen shows the "Slide: 36 of 53" status bar, the "Time: 00:52" and "6:52 AM" indicators, and a "Zoom:" control. Below these are thumbnails of the presentation slides, with the current slide "Managing Equipment" highlighted.

- Capstone Due Dates / Deadlines
 - Published at Start of Semester
 - See Weekly Schedule
 - See Major Milestones
 - Immovable
 - Your team depends on you.
 - You must get your tasks done on time.
 - Plan well in advance.
 - If you are “stuck,” ask for help sooner rather than later.
 - If you are not going to complete your tasks...
 - ❖ ...tell your team well in advance of the deadline.
 - ❖another team member will complete your task.
 - ❖ ...your team may be told they no longer need to depend on you.
